Here are just some of the work/ ideas we have done within WM emergency management. The EOP (Emergency Operation Plan) is a basic plan. It hasn't change since I've been the coordinator. What does change is info inside the basic plan like when new council members are elected, and any changes to our local resources that maybe available to us or response plan updates. I will not share resource / plans and providers info as this could undermine our effort. It may allow those looking to create issue with how and where to weaken our effort's. I also included an old version of the emergency response plan from PTC alliance which they are required to update yearly. I have removed names and numbers from the plan to protect those individuals.

Eli or I attend almost every quarterly train meeting at county. One of us is there for every meeting, 95% of the time we both attend.

In then past we held trainings with the WMVFD at the old B&W mill around spills and possible leaks from their chemical storage.

In 2007 we were part of the county wide terrorist training that was based on the power plant attack. We offered a plan for an attack on the Christian School as a diversion prior to the power plant attack. We had several fire departments and ambulances involved. We simulated a explosion in the school, blocked off normal fie exit and disabled the fire alarm system. We removed the principal to see how his subordinate would handle the situation. We shut the school down and transferred students to the fire hall where they were released to go home either by parent pickup or on their normal bus. We were the only municipality outside the 20-mile power plant zone to be involved. This was a real learning experience and brought issue up that we needed to work on.

We are the only EOC (Emergency Operation Center) that has a trailer for responses to aid residence with power and heating concerns in the event of a lengthy power outage. We have advised county of this unit in the event it might be needed at other sites if available.

We have a joint agree to handle Eastvale Borough emergency management as well.

Currently there are only three of us involved. We could use help if anyone has an interest. Please contact me. At 724-513-5640
